A NOTE FROM OUR ARTISTIC DIRECTOR

Welcome to WATERWORKS, round 2!

How about these astounding numbers ... over 50 performers, 16 directors, 20 new works, plus our very own Playwrights' Lab's, LOCALLY SOURCED, with six more plays and playwrights, along with the sheer number of submissions (over 600) this year. Not to mention the number of volunteers managing venues, running the tech booths, selling you drinks and treats, taking your tickets (Darryl!).

We're very proud of our Live Arts community for this monumental undertaking. One day I was walking through the building and theater-making was going on in every nook and cranny.

Every few years a refrain about theater being "a dying art" resurfaces. WATERWORKS says differently. The festival offers an opportunity to hear a plethora of new voices, telling their stories, provoking, connecting. Perhaps you'll leave a show one night, stroll down Water Street with your mind bubbling over, and be inspired to take pen to paper – or fingers to keyboard – yourself, and create the next ground-breaking theatrical stunner.

SUSAN E. EVANS

Artistic Director | LIVE ARTS

ENJOYING THE SHOW?

Please take a moment to fill out our audience survey so we can continue to improve your Live Arts experience.

A NOTE FROM OUR NEW WORKS DIRECTOR

What I love most about new works is the potential — for epiphanies, surprises, unexpected laughter or fury or tears; I like the way folks discover a world together, and become the first witnesses to the possibility of a story and community to impact a room of hearts. That’s beautiful work, and I take it seriously.

I had the pleasure of chatting with dozens of playwrights during our submission cycle, and supporting their belief that the power of theater is palpable and important. If you see a playwright around the building, say hello, say thanks, share a story. You are the element they’ve been missing!

Can I take a minute to offer my sincere thanks and appreciation to our 30 readers and selection committee members? These volunteers bring me the best questions, the sharpest reads, deep insights, and a true love of scripts. Our program depends on a diversity of perspectives and imaginations. It brings such brightness to my winter to share hundreds of precious, new stories with each of them. “Volunteer-powered” means we are truly blessed.

I’m glad you’re here, I’m glad we’re making art and building theater together, and I’m delighted to call it WATERWORKS time again!

The Madwoman Project presents

WATERWORKS NEW WORKS FESTIVAL

Sponsored by Open Hands in Memory of Live Arts
Co-Founder Michael Parent, and Virginia National Bank.

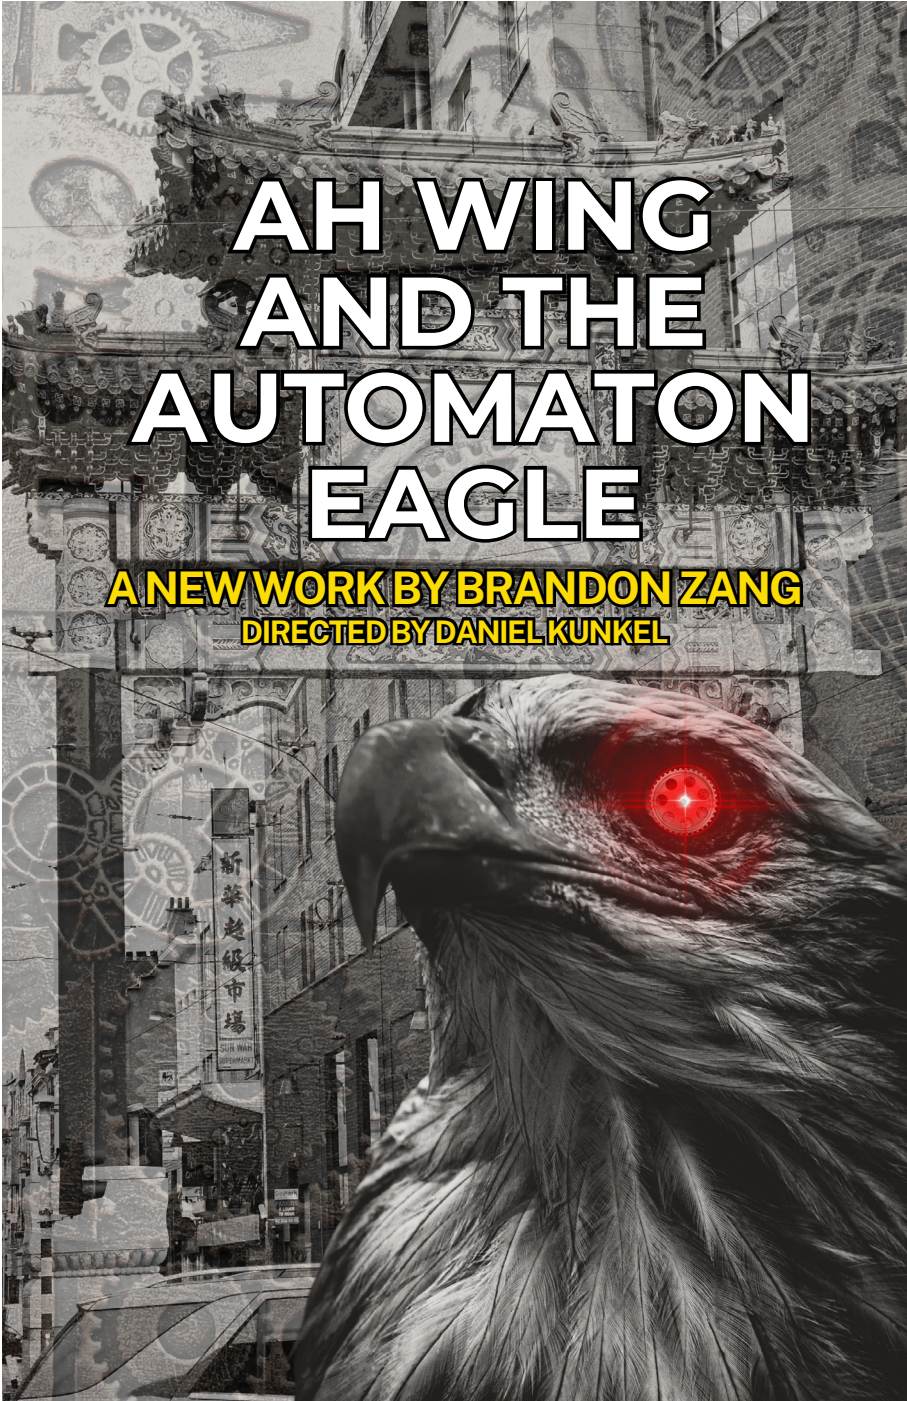

Launched in 2023, WATERWORKS celebrates new theatrical voices in Charlottesville and beyond! This festival of new works puts the playwright at center stage and diversifies the stories told on the Live Arts stage.

WATERWORKS features selected works from across the wide range of over 600 submissions! From the absurd to the melancholic, contemplative to riotous, these plays showcase the big questions and bold ideas on the minds of contemporary playwrights.

We are honored that their presentation continues our effort to center historically erased writers, with over 70% of produced works written by an artist who self-identifies as marginalized. These voices and narratives are paramount to the artistic promise of celebrating language, culture, theatricality, and rich expression. Many thanks to our playwrights, from Emerging to Debut, whose work provides occasion for connectivity and thoughtfulness in some of Charlottesville's best company!

We know you'll find something that strikes a chord, and we encourage you to share your thoughts, you're an important part of the festival.

Thank you for supporting new work and Live Arts.

SYNOPSIS: A steampunk alternate history retelling of the 1877 San Francisco Chinatown riot.
